Tekstas

Liepa – July – named after the Linden tree. It is called this way, because at the time of July, the Linden tree starts to bloom, and at the same time the bees bring in honey, which is very known for its superior taste.

Rugpjūtis – August – literally meaning cutting ryes. It is called this way, because at the time of August all the rye from last year is being cut/harvested.

Rugsėjis – September – literally meaning sowing ryes. It is called this way, because at the time all the rye is being sowed/ planted for the upcoming year.

Spalis – October – the literal meaning is the fragments of the husk of flax. It is named this way, because October was the time when all the husks of flax were being beaten.

Lapkritis – November – Its meaning is very obvious. It literally means the time of the year, when leaves start to fall.

Gruodis – December – named after the word gruodas, meaning lumpy frozen land. It is called this way, because at the time of December, the weather becomes colder and the winter starts to unfold.
